

MLA Works Cited/In-Text

An MLA works cited page is a list of the sources that you quote, paraphrase, or summarize in your writing. The list contains publication information that will help the reader find each source. Making a works cited list before you write your paper can save you time since in-text citations are based on the words at the beginning of the works cited entries.

For each source, you will need to give the following categories of information.

- Author
- Source (E.g., an “article” or book)
- Container the source is in (E.g., a book, periodical, website, or database)
- Contributors (E.g., an editor or translator)
- Version (E.g., the edition of the source)
- Number (E.g., the volume and issue)
- Publisher (Hint: For websites the sponsor or copyright owner is typically the publisher.)
- Date of Publication
- Location (E.g., pages, web address (URL), or digital object identifier (DOI))

To remember what the categories are and how to punctuate them, try this memory device: “A. small. cat, climbed, very, noisily, past, dozing, lions.”

When using the categories of works cited information, skip any categories not provided by your source and include the publication information that is meaningful for your readers. Depending on your purpose, you may give additional publication information such as the original date of publication, city of publication, and date of access, etc.

This handout gives examples of works cited entries for different sources. It is not comprehensive. For specific information on documentation, use the eighth edition of the MLA Handbook.

To save space, the examples below have been single-spaced; however, in an actual works cited page, all entries should be double-spaced. The in-text citations have been provided for your reference. Do not include in-text citations on a works cited page.

Electronic Sources

Electronic publication information can be found on a website's home and about page or at the top and bottom of the webpage.

Works cited entries for some electronic sources have two parts: print publication information and electronic publication information. Print information comes before electronic information. For example, an entry for an article originally published in a print journal and later to an online database would be cited as follows.

Culbertson, Jennifer B., et al. "Long Term Consequences of Residual Petroleum on Salt Marsh Grasses." Journal of Applied Ecology, vol. 45, no. 4, 2008, pp. 1284-1292. Academic Search Complete, web.a.ebscohost.com.chaffey.idm.oclc.org/ehost/detail/detail?vid=10&sid=37f7a268-3ff6-47c6-a705-aa8a4ecaf5bc%40sessionmgr4005&hid=4214&bdata=JnNpdGU9ZWWhvc3QtbGl2ZQ%3d%3d#AN=33017701&db=a9h.
