

The Multigenre Research Paper

What is a Multi-Genre Research Paper?

- "A multi-genre paper arises from research, experience, and imagination. It is not an uninterrupted, expository monolog nor a seamless narrative nor a collection of poems. A multi-genre paper is composed of many genres and subgenres, each piece self-contained, making a point of its own, yet connected by theme or topic and sometimes by language, images, and content. In addition to many genres, a multi-genre paper may also contain many voices, not just the author's. The trick is to make such a paper hang together."

(Romano, Blending Genre, Altering Style)

What Does a Multigenre Paper Look Like?

- <http://www.users.muohio.edu/romanots/pdf/nativdarkness.pdf>

How do you go about assigning or working on a multigenre paper?

The Assignment Process:

- 1) Pick a topic that interests you. Narrow it down and create a guiding research question.

Example:

Topic: Love Marriage versus Arranged Marriage

Research question: What are the pros and cons of each type of marriage?

Next

2) Start researching your topic. You want to find information that highlights what you think you want to say or that gives you a starting point. You may choose to do a project that is informative (i.e. states the facts, but is trying to answer some sort of research question) or you may choose to do a project that is persuasive in nature (i.e. it is still researched, but it has a more obvious bias).

Next

- 3) Begin to put your research into different genres. Your topic will lend itself to specific genres. For example, if I were to write about Love Marriage versus Arranged Marriage, I might use dialogues, news stories, journal entries, comics or another creative genre to present some of the information about the issue.

What is the Teacher's Role

The teacher's role is to discuss the different genre that they would like students to focus on. For example, if you want to teach students how to write a formal business letter, then include that as a genre, and teach students the components and style of a business letter.

If you want them to understand Haiku, ask them to write a Hiaku about their topics.

But I Don't Know How to Write in All These Genre! Help!

- It isn't necessary for teachers to know how to write in all these genre. They can learn WITH their students.
- All you need is a few samples of the genre you want to teach. Analyze it together. What are the elements? What is the format? What kind of language is used? Etc.

You should give students lots of guidelines

The minimum requirements:

- Page 1: Title Page
- Page 2: Table of Contents
- Page 3: Preface: Introduction to your project
- Last Page: Works Cited Page

You must use 5 – 7 genre in the paper

PLAN, PLAN, PLAN

- If you decide to try the multigenre paper, make a clear plan of how you will use class time. Perhaps you want to devote one teaching day each week to explaining/exploring a genre. The students will then have one week to write a section of their paper in that genre.
- Decide when you will start, when you will finish, how assignments are to be handed in, in what format, at what time, etc.
- Decide how you will grade the projects and make this clear to the students at the beginning of the project. One criteria for a good grade should be completing drafts on time.

How Should I Evaluate the Projects?

- You should have a set of criteria for what makes a strong paper. For example:
- Clear theme that is maintained in each piece
- Shows understanding of the genre
- Grammar and vocabulary
- Creativity
- Effort

Rubrics are Helpful

Create a rubric which can be used to evaluate each Element (10 = excellent; 1 = needs work):

- Clear theme that is maintained in each piece

10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1

- Shows understanding of the genre

10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1

Can I fit this into my syllabus?

- YES! You already know that you have to teach certain genre for the exam, right?
- So do it in an creative and motivating way for the students. Let them use one of the topics or readings from class as a starting point.
- You can make shorter multigenre papers that include fewer genre.

Let's Try It

- Your topic is “Teaching English in India”
- Your genre are:
 - Menu
 - Essay Question (like the ones your students have to answer on the exam)
 - Text message
 - Comics
 - Dictionary entry
 - Job Advertisement

Comics

- Cartoons and comic strips can be used from beginner level to advanced level for a variety of language and discussion activities. Cartoons are powerful teaching tools and can
- Tell a complex story in a few images
- Provide comment and provoke thought on events and issues in the news
- Give an example of vocabulary related to current trends and fads
- Provide easily identifiable characters to form the basis for sketches
- Show culture in action with the ways that men or women are behaving and are expected to behave
- Comment on and illustrate a whole range of issues like racism, teenage relationships, sexism, ageism, family relationships.
